SWEET POTATO VINE (IPOMOEA BATATAS)

The leaves of the ornamental sweet potato vine may be purple, bronze, yellow-green or variegated with white and pink. This fast growing, twining vine is a variety of the edible sweet potatoes that are selected for their colorful foliage, but are not tasty like their green leafed cousins. These showy plants bloom late in the season with the appearance of tubular, fairly large flowers which are similar to morning glories. Usually they are not particularly noticeable, though, because the foliage claims most of the attention. The sweet potato vine is happiest in sun to partial sun where it gets a bit of afternoon shade.
